

William Shakespeare

“There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so”—or at least there is nothing either good or bad, but enough people thinking makes it so”—Hamlet by Shakespeare (Wreen, 2019)

Shakespeare wrote this quote to suggest that an individual’s experience is unique because it can be interpreted in several ways. Some may view an experience according to their basic beliefs, principles, or circumstance.

